Dear reader,

Recently I had the privilege of meeting the French ambassador and the chief executive of EDF, the company building the Hinkley Point C power station. They were interested in hearing about local involvement and opportunities as North Somerset has been involved for some years now. Colleges and universities across the West of England have been providing training and practical experience for the wide range of skills EDF will need over the coming years for construction and operation. Accommodation, transport, leisure, administration, suppliers, engineering and staffing will all be needed for many years to come. More than 75 companies across North Somerset have already won contracts, with hundreds more on the list to look at opportunities. Really good news for the whole region.

Since the beginning of April, the council has taken over responsibility for enforcing on-street parking regulations. This was previously done by the police but understandably it has not been a priority for them, given their other commitments. We have had many complaints over the years about bad parking, on crossing points, blocking driveways, on pavements, blocking roads at busy times, or just parking all day in limited spaces which stops others having a reasonable chance of a few minutes in the shops. The council is enforcing regulations across North Somerset but will concentrate on areas where people behave irresponsibly and are a danger to others. I'm sure that there will be some unhappy drivers who get caught but after a few months we should all see the benefits of clearer roads and more available spaces. Soon we will consult on any changes that local communities would like to see but it is sensible to get the new system up and working and coping with the summer visitors before we start making changes.

Lots more good news over the last few months. Negotiating with Government departments can take months, if not years, during which time ministers can change and you almost have to start again. Occasionally perseverance can pay off and all the travelling and waiting seems worthwhile. Council officers have just been told that North Somerset will get a total of £44m over the next three years to create more school places, as well as £1.2m this year for repairs. Highways England have agreed to spend about £2.8m to improve traffic flows around Junction 19, pending a full review of the area. Historic England has given us a grant of £590,000 to help us promote and maintain our important heritage. Finally, we have been given £7.7m over the next three years to help with the rising cost and demand for adult care services. The council has earned a reputation for getting things done and now it is seeing the rewards. Well done to all staff who made it possible.

Councillor Nigel Ashton, Leader of North Somerset Council

Pill and Yatton libraries closed for refurbishment

Refurbishment work at Pill and Yatton library buildings is now under way as part of North Somerset Council's Community Access Review.

In Pill, the children's centre is moving from Crockerne Primary School to the library building.

During refurbishment, a temporary pop-up library can be found at the Salvation Army, in Heywood Road, every Friday.

The provisional re-opening date of the building is Tuesday 11 July.

In Yatton, the children's centre will move into the library building in August.

During the closure, the mobile library is stopping at Hangstones Pavilion, in Stowey Road, every Thursday morning.

The provisional re-opening date is Monday 14 August.

The Community Access Review is a major review of the council run buildings and services run in the community, with particular focus on its 14 children's centres and 12 libraries.

Fines issued for illegal parking

Parking services manager Allan Taylor

Enforcement officers are now busy across North Somerset handing out fines to drivers who park illegally.

North Somerset Council introduced civil parking enforcement (CPE) in April after taking over responsibility from Avon and Somerset Police.

Bad parking can lead to congestion, restrict access for emergency vehicles, cause problems for local businesses when vehicles overstay their parking time, and cause problems for pedestrians, wheelchair users and those with pushchairs when cars are parked over dropped kerbs.

Under CPE, the council is now enforcing:

- double and single yellow lines
- blue badge bays
- limited waiting bays
- taxi ranks
- loading bays

- zig-zag markings at schools (if restrictions apply) and pedestrian crossings
- parking across dropped kerbs where there is a crossing point and tactile paving
- double parking or parking too far away from the kerb edge
- parking in bus stops.

This is in addition to the off-street car parks and on-street pay and display parking that the council already looks after.

The police continue to be responsible for dealing with dangerously parked vehicles, obstruction and moving traffic offences.

Any money from charges goes towards running the scheme and any surplus goes towards transport initiatives and road improvements.

For more information about CPE, the charges and appeals process visit

Police team moves into Town Hall

Police officers in Weston-super-Mare have now moved into their new base at the Town Hall.

The local policing team for Weston is now based in the Walliscote Grove Road building, joining the police enquiry service which has been there since 2013.

There is no change to the police service provided in the town and it ensures officers are centrally located and can easily access the community.

The 16-strong team comprises one sergeant, six police officers and nine police community support officers.

Tina Robinson, local policing commander for North Somerset, said: "We are delighted to have created a more flexible working environment which reduces cost and enhances visibility in areas where the community need us.

"I can see huge benefits in co-location which will enhance partnership working and collaboration.

"Our teams will continue to be out in their communities and on patrol most of the time but it is important for us to be located close, or within easy access, to the areas we serve."

Are you a good listener?

Good listeners are needed to lend an ear and join a dedicated band of volunteers whose work can really make a difference.

The Samaritans of Weston-super-Mare and North Somerset need more volunteers to help answer the increasing number of calls.

Since the charity launched a freephone number in 2015, there has been a big increase in the volume of calls from people in despair or distress.

Informal recruitment events are now being held on the second Saturday of each month to give potential new volunteers information about the charity and the roles available, whether as a listener or helping with fundraising, finance or publicity.

The next events take place on Saturday 13 May and Saturday 10 June, from 10am-noon, at the Samaritans Centre, 137a High Street, in Weston (opposite the entrance to Grove Park).

South Bristol Link given top transport award

A major road development in North Somerset has scooped a prestigious award from a leading UK transport institution.

The South Bristol Link road was named the South West Transportation Project of the Year by the Chartered Institution of Highways and Transportation.

The new 4.5km link road and express bus route was a joint project between North Somerset Council and Bristol City Council, and designed and constructed by Alun Griffiths contractors.

A unique building information modelling system was used to work more efficiently, which saved more than £1m.

The project was also praised for its sustainability, with 15,000 tonnes of excavated material from Bristol

Airport being recycled and reused on the South Bristol Link.

South Bristol Link project manager Alex Fear, from North Somerset Council, said: "This is industry recognition of how the councils and contractor worked together in an innovative way to make a difference within North Somerset and the south Bristol areas."

Quiz the council about the roads

Residents in the Portishead area will get the chance to speak to council highways officers and find out more about local road investment this month.

Officers will be at the town's Sainsbury's supermarket on Thursday 18 May with representatives from highways contractor Skanska.

Visitors will have the opportunity to find out more about the council's plans for continued investment in the roads across North Somerset and, more specifically, in the Portishead area.

Bright futures ahead for foster children

Children and young people in foster care in North Somerset are overcoming difficult starts to achieve great things.

With lots of support, encouragement, love and understanding from their foster carers, the lives of young people are being turned around.

Paul* is now 15 and came into foster care when he was nine.

He said: "It was really hard to start with. I didn't know who I was going to be living with. I cried a lot and didn't get much sleep.

"It felt strange living in a family where things were completely different and I struggled."

Paul has remained with the same family since then but it took him two years to settle.

He said: "I wasn't well behaved because everything was different. I hated it. But it's lovely now that I know them and feel part of the family.

"The foster carers are really understanding and they help me when I'm upset.

"I have been given so many opportunities. We do lots of activities together and I like helping out. I'm learning how to cook and enjoy helping out with the car.

"I'm much more confident now and my friendships are better. I have good memories now.

"I also know I've got a good future in front of me and what I want to do when I'm older."

Paul's confidence has grown so much that he now speaks at recruitment events to encourage more people to become foster carers.

Does Paul have any advice for people thinking of becoming a foster carer?

I am now doing great at school. I have dreams and ambitions and am planning to do an apprenticeship at college and hope one day to have my own business.

AMY*, AGED 12

I joined a Tae Kwon Do class with my foster carer and foster sister and have now passed my grading to become a yellow tag.

LUKE*, AGED 15

"It's not going to be easy to start with but you cannot give up.

"It's important to have a sense of humour and realise that people make mistakes.

"Fostering will not be all singing and dancing and happy all of time. It is a big commitment and at times it can be really, really hard.

"Every child that goes into foster care is there for a different reason and at times you may have to empathise as to why they are upset or stressed.

"Don't give up, no matter how hard it is. When the children have grown up you will realise what a difference you have made to their lives."

Eric Brown, from north Somerset council's fostering team, said: "We are very proud of our young people.

"They are becoming confident people who have bright futures in front of them."

I used to get bullied. Now I am not afraid to stand-up for myself. I recently received a hero award for helping other children being bullied at my school.

THOMAS*, AGED 12

North Somerset Council currently looks after about 200 children but there are only about 70 active fostering families who are approved for one to three placements each. More are needed and a recruitment drive is under way to find carers for children of different ages and #makeadifferencein2017

Lounge about in style in Weston's newest bar

A popular café bar chain has opened its doors in Weston-super-Mare to provide the perfect place to lounge and watch the world go by.

Brunello Lounge opened in March in Princess Royal Square and is proving popular with people of all ages.

It is the latest opening in Weston's multi-million pound regeneration programme and has created 25 new jobs in the town.

The lounge is the latest site for the West Country-based café bar group and follows Impero Lounge in Portishead and Teatro Lounge in Clevedon.

The bar is a retro-inspired retreat with vintage artwork, old sofas and old school benches.

Loungers operations manager Hector Main said: "We're very family-friendly and look forward to becoming part of the community by supporting local groups and initiatives wherever possible."

A community noticeboard is available for anyone who wants to publicise events, there will be regular fundraising events, and there is also a book swap area.

There are also games, colouring pencils and pads to keep younger visitors entertained.

The lounge is open throughout the day for food and drinks, including a children's menu, vegan and gluten-free.

Historic sites helping Weston's regeneration

Weston's heritage will play a key part in its regeneration with help from almost £600,000 of funding through a new scheme.

Weston-super-Mare is the only town in the South West to be named as one of 10 Heritage Action Zones (HAZ) by Historic England.

North Somerset Council successfully bid for the money last year and the three-year project launched in March.

It aims to unlock potential in areas that are rich in heritage by bringing historic places back to life.

This in turn will attract residents, tourists, businesses and investors, and create economic growth.

Weston's HAZ will focus on supporting the ongoing regeneration of the town centre, which is home to many Victorian, inter-war and post-war buildings.

Plans include bringing buildings back into use as quality housing, developing clear heritage routes within the town centre to enhance existing trails to the beach and train station, and opening new pedestrian access to Weston Museum, the Italian Gardens and seafront.

Council committed to Portishead passenger line re-opening

Proposals to re-launch train services from Portishead remain a priority for North Somerset Council.

The plans form part of phase one of the MetroWest programme of transport improvements but recent reports of escalating costs have caused concern for the delivery of the scheme.

In March, the West of England Joint Transport Board discussed a report that advised indicative costs had risen from £58m to between £145m and £175m.

Detailed surveys and preparatory work carried out by Network Rail have shown that the work required at parts of the line is much more complex than originally thought and these findings have added significantly to the costs.

North Somerset Council remains committed to the Portishead line re-opening and it sees it as vital to strengthening the transport infrastructure of the area and being key to the success of a thriving West of England economy.

The scheme also continues to be backed by the Department for Transport (DfT) and Network Rail.

Mark Langman, route managing director (Western) for Network Rail, said: "Progressing MetroWest is a key priority for us so please be assured of our continued focus and support to deliver this exciting project."

Chris Grayling MP, secretary of state for transport, also said in a letter to MP Liam Fox that the department recognised the benefits of the MetroWest scheme and the positive impact it will have on local people.

Proposals for phase one include half-hourly train services from Portishead, with new stations at Portishead and Pill, as well as a half-hourly service for the Severn Beach line and local stations between Bristol Temple Meads and Bath Spa.

The West of England Joint Transport Board has agreed that phase one should still go ahead but will now be completed in stages.

The first phase of this will be improvements on the Severn Beach and Bath lines and an initial rail passenger service from Portishead, but with hourly rather than half-hourly services.

The second stage is to get two trains an hour to Portishead.

Award-winning wines tickle the tastebuds

A small corner of North Somerset is fast becoming a distinguished and recognised wine region.

Nestled within the Yeo Valley area, Aldwick Court Farm, Dunleavy, and Sutton Ridge vineyards are producing award-winning wines.

Aldwick Court Farm, near Blagdon, is a vineyard, wedding and conference venue.

The 11 acres of vines were planted by fourth-generation arable crop and pig farmer Chris Watts between 2008 and 2010.

Chris tragically died in 2011 so his sister Sandy Luck took over as managing director.

Sandy said: "The symbiotic relationship between venue and vineyard appeared obvious.

"My experience in hospitality and interior design meant these became my initial focus in 2012, along with running the farm."

With help from Chris's farm manager Tim Mewton, his head pigman Barry Parsons and vineyard manager Elizabeth Laver, the first round of clean, ripe grapes were harvested in 2013.

Since then, the single-estate wines have secured medals in national and international competitions.

Sandy said: "I'm especially proud of the 2013 sparkling wine, Jubilate.

Its first disgorgement received 90 points from Decanter magazine and the second took silver in the International Wine Challenge. We also received gold for our Mary's rosé in 2016.

"My objective is not to conquer the mass market but to secure a reputation for providing high-quality wines for the enjoyment of our venue clients, guests and visitors."

This year, the first Pinot noir red wine will be released, along with the 2014 Jubilate sparkling rosé.

Dunleavy Vineyard, near Wrington, is owned and managed by Ingrid Bates and Stephen Dunleavy.

Ingrid grew up near Taunton and returned to the south west after studying biology in London.

Her viticultural career began 10 years ago when she took up a job maintaining a local vineyard.

Dunleavy's first vines were planted in 2008 and the first wines were released in 2013.

The vineyard is a square block of mainly Pinot noir vines and a few thousand bottles of Pinot rosé are produced every year.

A sparkling wine is now also being produced, ready for sale in 2018.

Ingrid said: "Despite being a relatively small vineyard, we have made a big name for ourselves with most of the Sunday Times top 100 restaurants in Bristol selling our Pinot noir rosé.

"We have also won 'best local wine' at the Bristol Good Food Awards every year, as well as bronze at the International Wine Challenge and silver at the regional UK competition."

At Sutton Ridge vineyard, near Butcombe, four generations of the Ford family have come together to produce quality wines.

Founder Luke Ford got a taste for wine while at university and after graduating he began studying viticulture.

The two-acre site was planted with 1,750 vines in 2011.

Luke said: "The site was carefully selected for its unique microclimate and gentle slopes, which warm early in the morning and provide protection from the cooling south westerly winds."

"This environment allows our grapes a slow and gentle ripening process which produces wines that are fresh and elegant."

There are five different varieties which are all hand-picked to produce the range of award-winning still and sparkling wines.

This month the 2016 vintage still wines and 2014 sparkling wines are being launched.

They are only available directly from the family or from local retailers, including the Wine Shop in Winscombe, Lye Cross Farm Shop at Redhill, and Brockley Stores on the A370.

Tours and tastings take place at Aldwick Court Farm. Visit www.aldwickcourtfarm.co.uk/vineyard

Cooking up a storm in libraries

Cookery skills are being passed on to people in North Somerset during a unique programme of workshops being held in local libraries.

Cook2Learn is a new project where participants follow and prepare simple recipes while learning about food and healthy lifestyle choices.

It launched in January and those taking part have developed new skills in cooking and preparing meals, improved their confidence and gained a better understanding of the importance of a balanced diet.

The free workshops are delivered by library staff, volunteers and health trainers.

Each two-hour workshop has a different theme, including portion sizes; healthy lunchboxes and snacks; sugar, salt and fat; money and meal planning; food labels and getting your five a day.

One participant said: "There was a nice relaxed atmosphere and it was very helpful and informative. I enjoyed the workshop and will be signing up for another one."

The project is funded and supported by Carnegie UK Trust, as part of the Carnegie Library Lab programme.

North Somerset community librarian Frances Tout was inspired to develop the programme after visiting the Free Library of Philadelphia's Culinary Literacy Centre while on a study tour of public libraries in the United States.

Frances said: "Libraries are community spaces where people can gain new skills and knowledge and Cook2Learn demonstrates how libraries can make a valuable contribution to communities' health and wellbeing."

As part of the Cook2Learn project, new collections of cookery and food books are available in all North Somerset Libraries for members to borrow.

North Somerset library users can also read popular magazines on their smartphone, computer or tablet.

Nearly 30 titles are available through the emagazines service and new titles include BBC Good Food, Healthy Food, Olive and Women's Health.

To find out more about Cook2Learn and book onto a free workshop, visit www.cook2learnblog.wordpress.com or visit your local library.

Ingredients in place for new food and drink centre

The creation of a flagship food and drink innovation centre on the outskirts of Weston-super-Mare has moved a significant step forwards.

North Somerset Council successfully secured £9.36m funding from the West of England Local Enterprise Partnership to create FoodWorksSW.

The centre, within Junction 21 Enterprise Area, will provide a regional hub of excellence for food and drink manufacturers to help new businesses get started and established producers to innovate and grow.

It will be part of the Food Enterprise Zone, which will play a pivotal role in the drive to support the food and drink sector in North Somerset and wider region.

The Local Growth Deal funding will go towards the £11.3m phase one of the development, situated on five acres of land within Weston Business Quarter.

FoodWorksSW will be built near the new North Somerset Enterprise and Technology College and The Hive managed work space and create about 250 jobs.

Phase one will include a business engagement hub, four product development units and 12 food-grade business units of between 1,000 and 1,500sq ft.

Larger units of between 3,000 and 5,000sq ft will be provided in phase two of the project.

A private sector-led project advisory group is advising the council on the specific needs and requirements of the food and drink industry.

Chair of the group, Chris Smith, managing director of Marshfield Bakery, said: "This is an exciting step forward for the food and drink industry in the South West and will not only raise awareness of this important sector, but will also help to secure future growth and investment."

Building work is due to start this autumn, subject to planning approval, with an anticipated opening at the end of 2018 or early 2019.

Stickers to help sort your recycling

Stickers are helping people in North Somerset sort out their recycling boxes to help speed up crews and reduce traffic congestion.

Box 1
	household plastic packaging	household metal packaging	mixed paper	mixed textiles and clothes	spectacles
	cardboard	cartons	mixed glass bottles and jars	small appliances	batteries and mobile phones

The new recycling and waste service started in March and all residents have been sent an information pack with new stickers to illustrate how your recycling should be sorted.

Sorting your boxes so the right items are in the right one helps crews collect more quickly, which helps alleviate traffic congestion around North Somerset.

All items need to be separated except plastic and metal, which can be mixed together, and cardboard and cartons.

This is because they are placed in the same section of the collection vehicle.

Residents with more than two boxes can keep using their additional ones, as long as items from box 1 and 2 aren't mixed up.

If you only have one box, items still need to be separated as much as possible.

Everything except glass can be separated using untied plastic bags.

Anyone who hasn't received their stickers can contact Council Connect or pop into the Town Hall in Weston-super-Mare or Castlewood office in Clevedon.

To order a second recycling box, visit www.n-somerset.gov.uk/recycling

Missed collections must be reported with 24 hours (Monday-Friday).

Resident permits coming to recycling centres later this year

Residents in North Somerset will soon need to apply for a free permit to use one of the area's three recycling centres.

Permits are being introduced later this year to stop people from outside the area using the sites, as they are only meant for North Somerset residents to dispose of their household waste.

More information about the registration process will soon be available on the council's website and in the next edition of Life.

Get old items repaired at community café

Old broken items are being given a new lease of life thanks to a repair café which has recently launched in North Somerset.

The café started at the Lynch Chapel in Winscombe in March with skilled volunteers repairing a wide variety of objects.

It has been set up by Claire King, who said: "We live in a throwaway society.

"Many things which practically have nothing wrong with them end up in the bin.

"People have either forgotten that many things can be repaired or they don't have the skills to do it. The repair café wants to change that."

It is all about fixing things for free within the community. People bring along their broken belongings and volunteers use their skills and knowledge to fix them.

The group has a number of skilled fixers covering electrical and mechanical repairs, sewing, bicycle mechanics, carpentry and general DIY.

Items could include toys, bicycles, lamps, hair dryers, clothes, crockery or more.

The repair café is also about getting neighbours of all ages together to chat, help each other out and share skills.

Claire said: "Even if you don't have anything to repair, join us in the café for a drink and cake, see what we are doing and perhaps help others with their repairs."

Repairs can save money and resources, help minimise carbon emissions, and can be fun and sociable.

New repairers are always welcome to help out.

The repair café runs on the third Saturday of every month

Green-fingered groups working hard

Green-fingered volunteers are working hard in parks, woods and open spaces across North Somerset to improve the environment for everyone to enjoy.

In Grove Park, in Weston-super-Mare, a Friends of Grove Park group has recently launched and is already making a big difference.

The group coppiced overgrown vegetation in the rockery, which has opened up this key area of the park for visitors.

Many plants hiding in the seed bed, such as snowdrops and crocus, started to reappear thanks to getting more fresh air and light.

Samantha Phillips, North Somerset Council's natural environment officer, said: "We called on the local community to help maintain many important features within the park and the Friends have quickly become integral to it."

This follows on from a number of refurbishment projects that North Somerset Council has carried out in Grove Park over the last few years.

The Victorian bandstand has been renovated and the old tennis courts have become 3D football pitches in partnership with Weston College.

The council has also worked with the Civic Society to create a wisteria archway to the fragrance gardens.

Most recently, a facelift has been given to the much-loved Jill Dando's garden.

Weston College is also working with the Friends and council to launch some new projects.

These include planting a herb garden and foraging plant area so students can develop the planting beds and grow herbs from scratch to use at community events and in their own college projects.

The college is also hoping to hold an event in the park this summer with a catering and hospitality theme.

The Friends of Grove Park have also received support from the Friends of Prince Consort Gardens, including advice on the best plants to cope with the unique growing conditions of the rockery.

Samantha said: "Supporting all the friends groups is important to the council, but also connecting the groups to each other provides valued links and knowledge-sharing."

Throughout North Somerset, many volunteer groups exist to keep the area clean and green.

Friends groups work to agreed management plans to develop parks and open spaces in partnership with North Somerset Council.

Other recent projects across North Somerset include...

- Clevedon Wood Cutters – restoring grassland on Dial Hill by pushing back scrub and removing invasive Sumach
- Friends of Poets' Walk – uncovering the gun battery on Wains Hill
- Friends of Trendlewood – planting wildflower areas within the community orchard and coppicing in the woods
- Portishead in Bloom – planting cherry trees along the edge of Lake Grounds
- Pride in Portishead – carrying out regular litter picks
- Friends of Maltlands Park – creating habitat piles in the wildlife area of the park

- Friends of Watchhouse Hill – working within the community orchard to improve the area for events.

A new network has recently launched to provide support to these volunteer wgroups.

North Somerset Nature Net is led by YACWAG (Yatton and Congresbury Wildlife Action Group) and aims to help groups connect with each other and share training, experiences, skills, social events, publicity and resources.

Samantha added: "We fully support this network and all the fantastic work carried out by our volunteer groups."

North Somerset Council also has a range of equipment available to residents who want to help clear up their neighbourhoods.

The community clear-up kit is stored in a secure trailer and includes hand tools such as litter pickers, hoes and rakes, bin bags, and safety equipment such as gloves and hi-visibility clothing.

As a result of volunteers' hard work, there are now seven Green Flags flying across the area – a sign that they are kept to the highest standards.

Be prepared for an emergency

Everyone hopes emergencies will never happen to them but it's good to be prepared just in case they do.

A scheme in North Somerset is helping communities across the area prepare for the worst, whether it is flooding, severe weather, utilities failure or more.

Community Resilience North Somerset has been running for more than five years to help residents help themselves.

The team has recently produced a postcard-sized five minute checklist to complete as a family so everyone knows what to do if the worst happens, including what to put in a grab-bag or emergency box.

Download a copy at www.communityresilience-ns.org.uk or pick one up from your nearest library or the Town Hall in Weston-super-Mare, or Castlewood office in Clevedon.

Music festival returns to Clevedon

Live music, delicious street food and local ales and ciders can be enjoyed in Clevedon this month when a festival makes a welcome return.

The Curzon Music Festival takes place on Saturday 20 and Sunday 21 May at Clevedon's historic cinema.

Reef frontman Gary Stringer will headline on Saturday night with a set of new and classic songs, and Devon-based folk group Show of Hands are headlining on Sunday.

This year's line-up has again been curated by Songs from the Shed, which developed in a former World War One army building in North Somerset.

The shed is owned by Jon Earl and he set it up as a venue for bands to record acoustically. These recordings now have a big online following.

The weekend features back-to-back live bands, local and global street food, a cocktail bar and local ales and ciders.

Other musicians on the bill include Samuel Jack, Worry Dolls, Foreign Affairs, Elles Bailey, Low Chimes, Pete Williams and more.

Last year's inaugural festival was a huge success, with an eclectic line-up including Midge Ure and The Magic Numbers.

Seek out the animal sculptures

Hidden within the woods near Wraxall are small stone sculptures waiting to be discovered by keen-eyed walkers.

Walk information

Distance:

About one mile

Difficulty:

Easy/medium. Steep steps on path from Jacklands Fishing Lake. Stony/uneven tracks through the woods, with some sharp uphill sections.

Duration:

Allow a leisurely 90 minutes

How to get there

The main pedestrian entrance to Towerhouse Wood is directly from Towerhouse Lane along the grass track. There is no easy parking here though.

Instead, free parking is available at Jacklands Fishing Lake, on Clevedon Road, if you support the farm shop. It sells fresh trout, smoked trout paté, local produce and refreshments. Trail maps can also be picked up here.

Ty Sculpture Trail opened last year in Towerhouse Woods, between Nailsea and Wraxall, in memory of local resident Ty Partridge.

Ty died suddenly at the age of 21 of leukaemia but as a child he loved exploring the paths, climbing trees and building dens in the woods.

He would always ask for a treasure trail through the woods for his birthday party so the idea of creating a trail in his memory was born.

All the woodland animal sculptures are dotted along the paths so you have to seek them out and become a 'noticer' of nature.

The sculptures have all been carved by Piers Partridge and Phil Carter, the father of Ty's best friend Sam.

Life followed the route from Jacklands Fishing Lake. Follow the sign and cross the crystal-clear stream from the car park.

Follow the path up past the houses. There are some very steep steps to get up onto the trail so it might not be suitable for all.

There is then a steady climb up into the woodland before levelling off.

Follow the signs pointing the way to the Ty Sculpture Trail. The path then forks and you can take a circular route around in either direction.

Other paths lead off from the main one, if you want to explore the woods further.

On your way around look out for an old lime kiln, a fern valley and a giant Redwood tree.

The red dots on the trail map indicate the locations of the sculptures, so keep your eyes peeled.

If you picked up a trail card, the reverse shows which animals you can find. Tick them off as you go along.

Visit www.tysculpturetrail.co.uk for information about the trail and all the animals featured in the sculptures.

Hive of activity at popular community venue

A vibrant community hub in Weston-super-Mare has expanded the range of services it offers local people, groups and businesses.

The Campus, in Highlands Lane, Locking Castle, attracts more than 5,000 people a week.

North Somerset Council's award-winning venue also houses two schools – Herons' Moor and Baytree – and a children's centre.

Recent upgrades include a new BMX track, along with a refurbished library with a larger children's section, and improvements to the café.

Paul Hillman, manager at The Campus, said: "The café, part of a major refurbishment of the building in 2015, has been a big success and is proving very popular with people attending various activities and training courses."

The Campus has also been working in partnership with local charity North Somerset People First to provide work experience for students with learning disabilities from Weston College and some older students from Baytree School.

The students have been working in the café area and reception to gain experience in a customer-facing environment while supported by a member of North Somerset People First.

The Campus is also a meeting place for local groups and a popular venue for children's birthday parties and holiday clubs, as well as activities during the school breaks.

Visitors make use of the sports hall, a multi-purpose hall, hydrotherapy pool, and a number of meeting rooms which can accommodate anything from two to 100 people.

More than 50 regular adult and children's activities take place every week, ranging from swimming lessons for babies to Tai Chi for the over-50s.

Outside, the 11-acre site includes one adult and two junior football pitches with changing rooms, a skate park, a multi-use games area, the new BMX track and about 130 car parking spaces.

The Campus is open seven days a week, including weekday evenings. To enquire about hiring facilities, pop into the centre, call 01934 427 427 or email campus@n-somerset.gov.uk

Extensive first aid training courses are now held throughout the year. These include full first aid at work and requalification courses, paediatric first aid, appointed persons and a bespoke one-day first aid session.

Addressing North Somerset's roads

Surface dressing forms a major part of North Somerset Council's annual road maintenance programme.

About 18 miles of North Somerset's roads are due to undergo the treatment this summer, so Life found out more...

What is surface dressing?

Surface dressing is an effective and efficient way of extending and protecting the life of roads, and enhancing the skid resistance which improves road safety.

The treatment is suitable for roads that are structurally sound but where the surface is deteriorating.

Timely intervention can prevent them from worsening and requiring a much more expensive repair later in the future.

Peter King, principal highways engineer, said: "As a council we've adopted a 'whole life' approach to road maintenance.

"The costs of maintaining a road over its lifetime are considered and treatments carried out are the ones which offer better value for money in the long-term.

"This means that roads in relatively good condition will be treated with preventative maintenance treatments, such as surface dressing, before they deteriorate further and cost much, much more to put right."

And the approach is paying off, with the number of potholes being filled increasing and the number of potholes being reported decreasing.

Results from the 2016 Department for Transport road conditions survey are positive in North Somerset too.

The survey looks at the condition of roads and gives a percentage to show how many should be considered for maintenance.

The higher the percentage, the higher the number of roads that are in poor condition.

Results from North Somerset are...

- Principal A roads
two per cent (compared with five per cent in Bath and North East Somerset, four per cent in Bristol, and two per cent in South Gloucestershire)
- B and C roads
three per cent (compared with 17 per cent in Bath and North East Somerset, five per cent in Bristol, and five per cent in South Gloucestershire)
- Unclassified roads
four per cent (compared with 11 per cent in Bath and North East Somerset, four per cent in Bristol, and 12 per cent in South Gloucestershire).

The treatment

Once roads have been identified and prioritised, they have to be prepared for treatment.

About a month before surface dressing takes place, engineers visit the site to carry out pre-works.

Peter said: "We'll remove any vegetation or debris from the side of the road so that we treat the entire road surface, patch any potholes or defects that have appeared since we surveyed, and remove any cat's eyes."

During surface dressing, the road is sprayed with bitumen and covered with gritstone.

It's then rolled which, along with the action of the traffic, embeds the chippings into the surface.

The works are carried out at this time of year because the treatments work more effectively in warmer weather.

It's normal for there to be excess chippings left behind afterwards – these are swept up within 48 hours and at least two more sweepings take place within the following 28 days.

Signs are put up on the roads which have been dressed to warn drivers to keep to a 20mph limit.

This helps make sure the chippings bed-in properly and minimises the risk of loose chippings causing damage to paint work or other road users.

Peter added: "If the weather is particularly warm, the bitumen can become fluid.

"This means the chippings could be picked up on footwear, wheelchairs, pushchairs or pets' paws, then carried into houses.

"So we ask people to avoid walking or driving on the carriageway and to take special care keeping children and pets away from treated areas."

Highways engineers will then inspect the treated roads at regular intervals after the treatment and reinstall the road markings once they're satisfied with the completed road surface.

Why do surface dressing?

- it seals the road, preventing water seeping in and causing potholes - prolonging the life of the road by up to 10 years
- it is a quick, cost effective treatment - maximising limited council resources and limiting the amount of time roads need to be closed
- it enhances skid resistance – improving road safety
- it is sustainable – any surplus chippings can be swept up, washed, graded and re-used in the following year's programme

Walk your way to better health

travelwest

Walking can be the perfect start to a healthier lifestyle and making it part of your everyday routine can bring lots of benefits.

Pounding the pavements is free and you can start at any fitness level and gradually build up.

Whether you stroll around the park with your dog, walk to the station as part of your daily commute, head to the shops or join a local walking group, there are lots of ways to explore your local area and get fit.

Pound the pavements

About 70 per cent of pupils walked to school a generation ago but now it's less than half.

To help young people make healthy travel habits, National Walk to School week runs from Monday 15 to Friday 19 May.

North Somerset Council's sustainable travel and road safety team will be provided resources and promoting the event at schools throughout the area.

Adults will also be encouraged to walk to work during the same week and a Travelwest roadshow team will visit businesses and communities to provide tips and support to help you change your commute.

Health benefits

Walking is one of the most effective and enjoyable forms of exercise.

Regular walks can reduce the risk of major health conditions, such as heart disease, stroke, type 2 diabetes and some cancers, by up to 50 per cent.

Walking also boosts your immune system, helps you sleep better and gives you more energy throughout the day.

It can also be a good social activity, is an effective way of reducing depression and reduces stress and anxiety.

Completing a one-mile walk in 20 minutes will burn 100 calories.

Daily walks can also improve your memory and endorphins are released into your body which can improve your mood.

Motivation through your mobile phone

Motivation to move more and get walking can be found in a new activity app.

The Active 10 app by Public Health England encourages you to make walking part of your daily routine by taking a brisk 10-minute walk each day.

The app tells you how much brisk walking you are currently doing and you can build up to 30 minutes a day to get the long-term health benefits.

Raising awareness of important issues

Charities and organisations work hard in North Somerset to help people lead full and active lives.

Many organisations hold annual awareness events to highlight the work they do and where people can go for help if they need it.

Life takes a look at some events happening soon....

Celebrating the support for deaf people

Support is available to help deaf people and those with hearing loss lead full and active lives.

A Deaf Awareness Week will be held in North Somerset from Tuesday 2 to Friday 5 May and it aims to showcase the work of different organisations and support available.

North Somerset Council is working with Weston College, Citizens Advice North Somerset, and the audiology team at Weston General Hospital on the joint campaign, which has a 'celebration' theme.

During the week there will be advice and information at the Town Hall, in Weston-super-Mare, as well as Weston General Hospital, run by the audiology team.

Vision North Somerset will be demonstrating equipment which people can try out, and hearing dogs and their owners will be in the Town Hall every day.

In addition, there will be an online hearing test, lip reading taster sessions, competitions, story time sessions accompanied by British Sign Language in some schools, and displays in libraries.

Flying high to raise awareness of dementia

Kites will be flying high throughout North Somerset this month to raise awareness of dementia.

Dementia Awareness Week runs from Sunday 14 to Saturday 20 May and this year's theme is 'united against dementia'.

Kite-related activities will take place because kites have been around for decades, conjure up memories of the past, and bring a smile to people's faces.

Kites are loved by people young and old, and they bring opportunities for people to spend time together and enjoy the simple pleasures in life.

The Alzheimer's Society in North Somerset will be organising kite-related activities during Dementia Awareness Week and is encouraging local people to get creative and join in too.

Celebrating the work of unpaid carers

The CarersSupportAlliance
Supporting carers

Unpaid carers who look after loved ones provide an invaluable service which means people can live in their own homes for longer.

More than 22,000 people in North Somerset care for a family member or friend living with a long-term health problem or disability.

Many don't recognise themselves as being a carer but see their responsibilities as just being a husband or wife, son or daughter, or friend.

Carers Week is an annual campaign to highlight the challenges that carers face and celebrate the difference they make to families and communities.

It runs from Monday 12 to Sunday 18 June and North Somerset Carers Support Alliance will use the week to focus on people who are rurally isolated, as well as those juggling caring responsibilities with employment.

Advice and information sessions will be held throughout the week, including at Weston Air Festival, and carers will get the chance to take part in arts and crafts workshops and wellbeing events.

Help available to get best value from your care services

Adults in North Somerset can access a wide range of social care support but many may need help getting the right services for the right price.

North Somerset Council's Care Navigator service points people in the right direction and helps those who are paying for their social care to get the best value for money.

Life spoke to one care navigator to find out how this innovative, free service is helping people live independently.

Sam Taylor has been a care navigator for North Somerset Council for the last three years.

She said: "I wanted to work face-to-face with people and really make a difference to their daily lives."

What is the care navigator service?

It is a free service to help individuals and their families make decisions about the best way to stay as safe and independent as possible and reduce social isolation.

We use our local knowledge of community services and care options available to help people find the support they want.

This can be anything from making links in the local community, to finding care at home such as support with personal care, mealtimes and shopping, or day centres, respite care, care home placements and housing options.

Care navigators can help people get the best value for money, as well as simplify the process of finding services tailored to their needs.

Who do you help?

Anyone who has savings or investments of more than £23,500, or joint savings of more than £46,500, can use the care navigator service.

For example, we support people who live either at home or in a care home, or those who are about to be discharged from hospital.

How can people contact you?

You can ring us through Care Connect, and we aim to ring you back within five working days.

What do people say about the service?

The people we help and their families are very grateful for our support. We help them find the support they need to continue living as independently as possible, while negotiating costs of care on their behalf and getting the best value for money.

We are a friendly and caring team and can help as much or as little as you want.

A day in the life of a care navigator...

My first visit is to see an older gentleman in Clevedon. His wife passed away last year and he is struggling with housework and cooking. We discuss lots of options and he decides a cleaner and meals on wheels would be a good start. I agree to get quotes for a weekly cleaner and set up community meals. I will contact him again in a month to see how things are going.

Next, I go to Weston General Hospital. Someone from our team visits three times a week to speak to patients who are preparing to go home.

One woman has been in hospital with a broken elbow and damaged hip. She and her family are considering a care package to help with washing and dressing when she's back home. After discussing the options and finding out more about what she could do before the accident, we agree that I'll help source a care package. Once this is in place I will follow-up in a month to see what future help she may need.

Back to the office after lunch. I have prices for a care-at-home enquiry I started yesterday so call the daughter to talk through options. Once they make a decision, I'll let the successful provider know so they can contact the family directly.

Our database shows that Care Connect received a call from someone on behalf of his elderly father. They would like to look for respite care for dad while the son is on holiday. I call the son back to discuss care homes with availability and the rates they charge.

It is always so nice to make such a difference to people's lives and help them find their way through the huge range of services available. I go home feeling I have supported people to find what they're looking for and stay safe.

Improving care in the home

Providing care and support for older people in the home is important to help them remain as independent for as long as possible.

This could range from shopping and domestic help to supporting a person back to independence after a fall or illness, or personal care such as helping with medication or nursing.

For the past two years North Somerset Council has looked into ways of improving the way care in the home is delivered.

As a result, North Somerset has been split into five areas based on population size.

New providers have been appointed for these areas and all new care arrangements will be delivered by them.

Existing care being provided will gradually transfer to the new providers, and existing staff will be eligible to transfer with the work.

This means they can stay with the people they currently look after and it causes as little disruption as possible.

Karen Franklin-Bell, from the council's commissioning team, said: "Many people prefer to stay in their own homes and this is definitely a good choice as, in most cases, the council can organise the right care at the right time.

"It's important that everyone receiving care currently feels happy and settled about the future of their care."

The five areas:

- Weston-super-Mare will be served by Alliance Living Care
- Kewstoke, Worle and Banwell will be served by Notaro Homecare
- Clevedon and Portishead will be served by Brunelcare
- Long Ashton, Backwell and Churchill will be served by Notaro Homecare
- Nailsea, Yatton and Congresbury will be served by Notaro Homecare

Karen added: "The new contracts are very flexible and allow for support to be given to residents when and where it is needed."

In addition to these, other providers still continue to deliver care across the area, mainly to people who fund it themselves.

Other options for care also include extra-care housing schemes.

These are supported-living options for people over-55 which give the opportunity of living independently but with the peace of mind of additional care if it is needed.

Developments include Tamar Court, Lakeside Court and Diamond Court in Worle, Weston-super-Mare, and Waverley Court in Portishead.

For advice and information call Care Connect: 01943 888 801

The new care providers will hold open days for staff to find out more about transferring. Dates and venues will be publicised in local media.

30 hours of free childcare coming soon

Free childcare will soon be extended to 30 hours a week to help parents of three and four year olds extend their working hours.

All three and four-year-olds are currently entitled to 570 hours of free early education a year – commonly used as 15 hours a week for 38 weeks.

From September, the government is doubling this to 30 hours a week to support working parents manage the cost of childcare and enable them to increase their working hours.

This entitlement will still be for 38 weeks a year though, so the weekly allowance will be less if it is spread over the whole year.

Parents or carers need to meet the eligibility criteria to take advantage of the scheme...

- both parents must be working, or the sole parent working in a lone parent family
- each parent must earn, on average, a weekly minimum equivalent to 16 hours at the national minimum wage or national living wage
- each parent must have an annual income of less than £100,000.

Childcare providers are not obliged to offer the extra hours though, and some might not because of restrictions on their premises.

Some might also introduce extra charges, such as for food, or ask for contributions to help cover costs.

Parents who are not eligible for 30 hours will still receive the 15 hours free childcare that is currently available.

Tax-free childcare

Parents will be able to open a new account to save money which will then be used to pay their childcare provider.

For every £8 a parent pays into their childcare account, the government will pay in an extra £2, up to £2,000 per child per year.

Parents can use tax-free childcare alongside the 15 and 30 hours free childcare schemes.

However, tax-free childcare cannot be used at the same time as receiving childcare vouchers, Universal Credit or tax credits.

Online portal for social care advice

Information, advice and resources about all types of care in North Somerset is available online in one place.

North Somerset Council's online directory brings together the different elements of social care in one place so people can find information quickly and easily.

It is split into three sections...

- families - information about schools, children's centres, childcare and more
- local offer - services for children and young people with special education needs or a disability
- adults - adults and older people who may need support because of illness, accident, disability or ageing.

Three new features are now available in the adults section...

Take the self-help questionnaire

People who need extra support or services to stay independent can now take a self-help questionnaire to discover what is best for them.

The tool is available from the main adults section of the online directory and takes about 15 minutes to complete.

The personalised response will direct you to specific information, advice or details of services that could help you.

It can be filled in anonymously and at the end you will have the chance to make a referral to North Somerset Council if you want to.

Carers' hub

Carers are people who look after an ill or disabled friend, relative or partner.

It can be emotionally and physically draining so information and advice is now available online for carers aged 18 and over.

The carers' hub can be accessed from the main adults section and it includes a self-assessment tool to point you in the direction of specific help.

Buy equipment and products

A wide range of equipment and products are available to assist with day-to-day life and keep you independent for longer.

Reducing the risks of drug-related deaths

Drug-related deaths have hit record levels in England and Wales so work is under way to reduce the risk here in North Somerset.

According to a count of coroner's rulings, there were a record 3,674 drug poisoning deaths involving both legal and illegal substances nationally in 2015.

North Somerset Council's community safety and drug action team has worked for many years reviewing, responding to, and carrying out preventative measures around local drug-related deaths.

This responsibility also covers alcohol-related deaths and near-misses, such as overdoses.

The council's substance misuse manager Ted Sherman said: "Deaths related to drug and alcohol use cause misery and place a significant strain on public services.

"The national increase in these types of deaths shows how important it is for local government and its partners to get to grips with preventing the avoidable loss of life."

Multi-agency reviews look at any gaps in service provision, any problems with practice or procedures, any recurring themes, and agree ways of reducing the risk of similar incidents happening again.

Key findings from recent reviews show...

- Mental health problems featured in about 75 per cent of the deaths reviewed in North Somerset.
- 40 per cent of those with a substance use problem who took their own life had made previous suicide attempts.
- The importance of naloxone in saving lives has become clear. The medication can reverse the effects of a heroin overdose and be used by anyone following a short training session. Naloxone has been used at least nine times in North Somerset and in one case enabled a local resident to turn their life around.
- Using drugs and/or alcohol while taking medication can be risky. For example, excessive alcohol use can make diabetes medication less effective. If you know anyone who takes regular medication and drinks alcohol, encourage them to speak to their GP or Addaction and limit their alcohol intake.

If you are concerned about yourself or someone else, call:

- 999 in an emergency
- your GP
- Addaction – 01934 427 942
- the Samaritans - 116 123 (freephone)

Addaction provides substance misuse support and treatment to adults in North Somerset. This includes help with reducing use to safer levels, providing information about risks, and intensive treatment. It also runs naloxone training sessions. Call 01934 427 940 for information.

Visit www.talktofrank.com for information about substances, effects, health risks and the law.

Revellers can visit MAVIS

St John Ambulance volunteers

Revellers in Weston-super-Mare now have a safe place to go, wait for friends, or even just charge their phones, every Saturday night.

MAVIS bus - a multi-agency vehicle in service - offers a safe, warm and non-judgemental place to go for help.

The bus was previously used during times of high demand, such as pay day weekends and big events, but thanks to volunteers from St John Ambulance it will now be parked in Princess Royal Square from 9pm to 3am every Saturday night until September.

MAVIS provides a hub for police, ambulance, street wardens, street pastors, licensing and other local agencies working in the night-time economy.

St John Ambulance's volunteer area manager Damien Macdonald said: "It's all about working together for a safer Weston.

"Everyone wants to have a good time at the weekend but high spirits can sometimes lead to accidents or illness and that's where we come in.

"With our first aiders close to the action, ready to take care of people who are sick, injured, or worse for wear, we're making sure that – should anyone's night out come to an abrupt halt for any reason – they'll be in safe hands."

A safe space is a collective term for schemes that provide triage, recovery and pastoral care to people out in the evening who may be drunk, have taken illegal drugs, or be lost or vulnerable.

Safe spaces may also offer information to town centre visitors, as well as provide a physical base for the crews working at night.

There are about 50 established 'safe space' schemes in the UK, including Hereford, Chelmsford, Swansea, Bournemouth and Exeter.

every Saturday night

Police and ambulance services use a traffic light system for each Saturday night to anticipate footfall and decide what staffing levels will be needed.

Sergeant Mark Jenkinson, from Avon and Somerset Police, said: "MAVIS provides an unrivalled operation which joins our partners together to provide a safe and friendly service.

"It is somewhere people can go to seek help, advice or even pop in just for a chat.

"MAVIS is a visual crime prevention bus. Our local community know police officers work from MAVIS and are on-hand to prevent any offending behaviour.

"Weston's night life is fun, vibrant and safe. MAVIS is part of that life and is something we, and our partners, fully support."

MAVIS has a separate private medical area at the back of the bus for paramedics and trained first aiders to carry out their work.

By providing this help, it means patients are diverted from Weston General Hospital's A&E department, so helping to reduce waiting times there.

The bus is also linked by radio to licensed premises, the police and CCTV so staff on-board can monitor what's going on in the town centre and respond to any calls for help.

MAVIS available for hire

Organisations or groups from across North Somerset can hire MAVIS to use at their community events.

MAVIS was used at 45 events last year, including outreach work, roadshows, health care awareness and training, and even as an emergency command centre.

It is fully equipped with audio visual equipment, mains sockets, wi-fi, and has a large flexible space with fold-down tables and chairs.

There is also a separate room at the back with a table and chairs, and a medical bed and equipment.

MAVIS can be booked for £50 per day, or £25 per half day, which goes towards its running costs.

It can be delivered to a location of your choice at a specific time, and collected at the end of your event. For more information about hiring MAVIS call 01934 427 265 or email mavis.bus@n-somerset.gov.uk

Student journalists share good news stories

Students in Weston-super-Mare are learning news gathering, writing and video editing skills as part of a new 'good news' journalism project.

The project has been set up by students from Worle Community School and Priory Community School, with funding from the Big Worle Partnership, to help develop the skills and talents needed to become journalists.

The Good News group meets at the Big Worle Hub in Clovelly Road, Worle, every week and is supported by teaching staff from both schools as well as visiting professional journalists and PR experts.

The group's mission is to seek out stories from the local area and share them with the wider community using a variety of media.

Ex-Priory student Alex Crowther was involved in setting it up.

He said: "Young people in this area are fantastic. They are full of good news. We want to cover their stories, get them to write about community champions and involve as many as we can in this wonderful project."

Alex is also involved in the Weston Eagles volunteer project, which was set up last year to give local teenagers the chance to get involved in community initiatives and raise money for charity.

Funding from the Big Worle Partnership has helped buy 10 iPads and keyboards for the Good News project, which students are now using to write stories, take photos and create videos.

Denise Hunt, chair of the Big Worle Partnership, said: "We are delighted to be able to support the students and are looking forward to lots of positive stories about people who live and work in the Big Worle area."

Makayla Nunn and Liam Byrne

Jacqui Scott, head of school at Worle, said: "This is a wonderful project and our students are already at work finding lots of stories."

Jane McBride, head of school at Priory, said: "Our students are full of amazing stories and we want to tell both the school and wider community just how brilliant they are."

Prizes will be given to students who come up with the most inspiring stories.

If you've got a story that you'd like to let the student journalists know about, contact the Big Worle Partnership: 01934 708 119

Get vocal, be heard

Residents who are on the receiving end of council services often have good ideas about how to make them better.

North Somerset Council listens to residents' views and takes them into account, where possible, when making future decisions.

What are you doing about the temporary mini roundabouts at the Cabstand junction in Portishead?

We did

Two mini roundabouts were trialled at the Cabstand junction following feedback from local people.

These are now being made permanent to provide a safe junction for road users and pedestrians.

The work started last month and is expected to take six weeks to complete.

It includes:

- making the Cabstand/Station Road mini roundabout permanent and raising the middle of it
- moving the existing zebra crossing five metres to the west to give one vehicle length from the give way marking at the mini roundabout
- adding a raised crossing point on the A369 High Street northbound, between the roundabouts

- steepening the ramps on the approaches to the raised crossings on A369 Station Road
- raising and making the A369 Wyndham Way/High Street/Station Road mini roundabout permanent, realigning it to incorporate the new road layout
- removing the existing speed cushion between the two mini roundabouts
- installing a new, raised zebra crossing on eastbound Wyndham Way (heading away from the town centre) and a new, raised puffin crossing on westbound Wyndham Way (heading towards the High Street)
- creating a maintenance vehicle layby on Wyndham Way westbound, on the approach to the mini roundabout.

A walkway is also being created at Brunel Court, and existing disabled bays re-marked so they can be enforced.

The work is costing £60,000 and is being carried out by Skanska on behalf of North Somerset Council.

I'd like to plant a tree in memory of a loved one. How do I do that?

We did

North Somerset Council officers can organise commemorative planting in memory of a loved one. This can be done throughout the area, not just in formal parks.

Each tree costs £250, which pays for the tree, planting, staking, protection if needed, watering, and weeding until the tree is self-sufficient and well established, along with any pruning.

A number of new trees were recently planted in Weston-super-Mare thanks to a donation from Weston Civic Society.

The money paid for 11 trees – one cherry tree on the Boulevard; five crepe myrtle trees in Locking Road; and five birches in Baytree recreation ground.

If you are interested in having a tree planted, email principal tree officer Linda Saretok: linda.saretok@n-somerset.gov.uk

Dear Editor,

Thank you for highlighting the danger of ignoring the early signs of Lyme disease (March/April issue).

My son had a late diagnosis. He had to convince his doctor he had the disease and it needed a blood sample sent to Porton Down to prove he did.

To witness what he is going through is awful so thanks again for drawing people's attention to it.

Apparently by 2028 it will be an endemic so we need articles like this. Incidentally, like one-third of sufferers, he had no rash and does not recall a tick bite.

Elizabeth Griffiths, Backwell

Editor's reply:

I'm sorry your son has been so unwell. It is very important to be tick aware. NHS advice is to use a pair of tweezers that won't squash the tick (such as fine-tipped tweezers), or use a tick removal tool (available from pet shops or vets). Pull steadily away from the skin without twisting or crushing the tick.

Dear Editor,

Now that Backwell Lake has proved to be a safe and popular asset for all ages (March/April issue), could similar features please be factored in when considering future building projects?

It's clear that liaison with Wessex Water at the early design stages really made a difference for future generations.

With urban sprawl likely in future, such brilliantly designed amenities could be essential for general human welfare, as well as wildlife, at relatively low cost.

Allan Andrews, Clevedon

Dear Editor,

This week we had visitors and on a fine day used our bus passes to go to Weston seafront.

The pavements were clean, the tide was in, the beach had been swept clean, the sun was shining and Weston looked beautiful. I felt so proud.

Many topics are covered on Twitter and Facebook and last month the issue of civil parking enforcement was raised.

 So NSC where would you like me to park my car? You have ticketed the whole of Hill Road and its surround but not provided an alternative for those of us who live here! It is not acceptable to just decide one day you will enforce an unworkable parking situation you have ignored for years!

North Somerset Council: We haven't ignored it, the police have. That's why we have taken on civil parking enforcement, as the police do not have the resources to ensure parking restrictions are monitored.

 Why don't parents just park properly and then the council wouldn't have to waste their time enforcing it? If parents left earlier, they could park and maybe even walk a short distance to school. I never had a problem parking at the school or one of the many surrounding roads. This is about child safety not parent convenience!

Tide timetables for Weston-super-Mare

Tide facts

Approximate high water times at:

Clevedon: 10 min

Portishead: 18 min

later than

Weston-super-Mare.

Weather conditions which differ from the average will have an effect on the differences between predicted and actual tide times.

Strong winds can hold the tide in or push the tide out. Air pressure can also cause fluctuations in predicted levels.

Tidal predictions for Weston-super-Mare have been computed by the Proudman Oceanographic Laboratory.
